

Bad Weather Postpones Orbit Flight

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (P) — A heavy cold cover in the launching area today forced the United States to postpone for at least 24 hours an attempt to rocket astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. into round-the-world orbit.

The launching was called off for the day at 9:10 a.m. (EST) as Glenn, 40-year-old Marine lieutenant colonel, anxiously waited out the countdown while sealed in his cramped, two-ton spacecraft atop a towering Atlas missile.

A statement from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the attempt was postponed "due to heavy overcast in the area. The pilot, John H. Glenn Jr., will be removed from the spacecraft."

"It is not known when another launching attempt will be made."

Glenn was to be taken down from the rocket and returned to his special "ready room" quarters in Hangar 8 about four miles from the launching pad.

There was no immediate comment from Glenn on the postponement. He had left Hangar 8 at 4:46 a.m. after a final physical examination and breakfast. He entered the capsule at 5:12 a.m. for a scheduled 7:30 launching.

Two minor problems delayed the launch past the scheduled time and while technicians were correcting one of them the clouds moved over the Cape and completely obscured what had been clear skies earlier.

The postponement thwarted for at least a day America's effort to hurl a man into orbit to match the feat accomplished last year by the Russian cosmonauts Gherman Titov and Yuri Gagarin.

Two U.S. astronauts, Alan B. Shepard and Virgil I. Grissom, were rocketed on two 15-minute suborbital flights in 1961. Both these launches also were delayed by weather, each for three days.

Today's postponement was the fifth for Glenn's flight. Originally scheduled for last Dec. 20, when officials felt there was a chance of achieving manned orbit in 1961, it was put off until Jan. 16 when pressure began mounting on the launch crews.

Glenn mainly relaxed on the last day before the scheduled flight. He underwent the usual physical examination, attended

Influenza Closes Down School

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Another Arkansas school district shut down today because of influenza, bringing to approximately 5,000 the pupils who are away from classes because of the disorder.

The Bentonville District suspended until next Wednesday. The district includes schools at Cave Springs and Centerton as well as at Bentonville.

The State Education Department said the district's latest reported enrollment was 1,639.

Earlier this week schools had closed at Searcy and nearby Judsonia, at Bergman and Lead Hill in Boone County and at Plum Bayou in Jefferson County.

At Fayetteville, school officials said there was a fairly sharp rise in absences today. The total climbed to 909 out of an approximate 4,000 enrollment.

Supt. Wayne White said classes will be held Monday and that if the rate of absenteeism is still climbing, the schools probably will close.

Besides flu and similar disorders, some chicken pox, mumps and measles figured in the Fayetteville situation.

The Jonesboro absentee rate also rose after three days of decline.

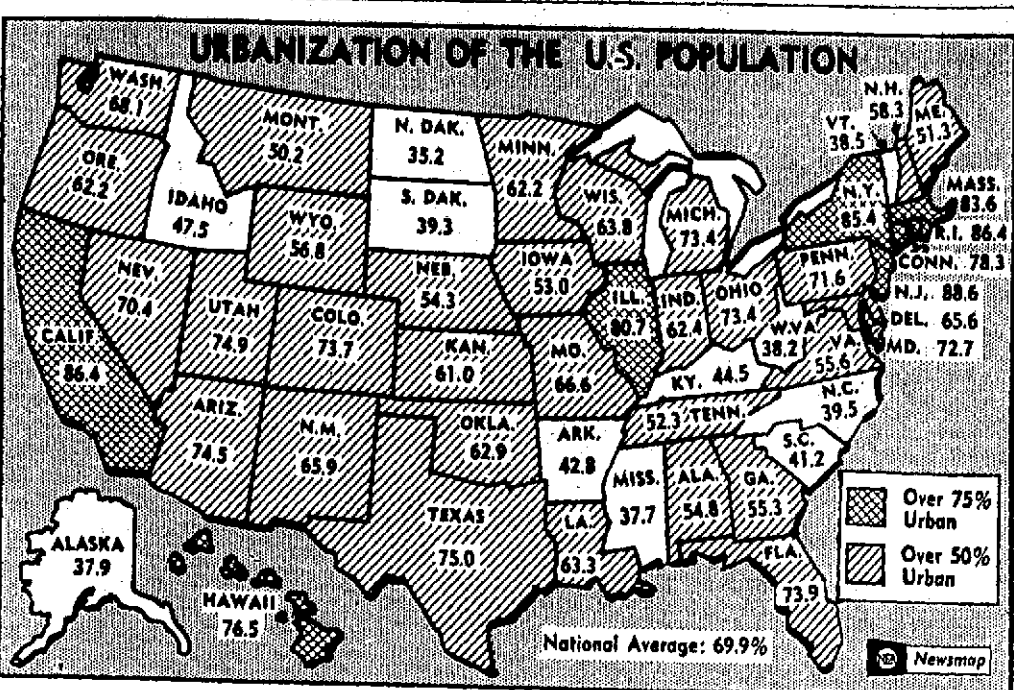

There were 77 students away from classes out of an enrollment of 4,332. On Monday 747 pupils were absent, but the number had fallen to 585 by Thursday.

The state Health Department said today its only new report on the flu situation was of 30 cases in Woodruff County.

Weather

Total precipitation during December 6.90 inches; during the year, 58.09 inches. Total rainfall during the previous year, 50.93 inches.

Arkansas — Clear to partly cloudy and colder through tonight.

NATION OF CITY FOLKS—Today, only 11 states in the Union are predominantly rural; 31 are over 50 per cent urban; eight are more than 75 per cent urban. In 1790, the population density was 4.5 people per square mile; today it is 51. Among the states, density ranges from Alaska, with one person for every 2 1/2 square miles, to Rhode Island, with 812 per square mile. The 1960 census showed a population 70 per cent urban, as against 5 per cent urban in 1790 when the first census was taken. Data from Population Reference Bureau, Inc.

New Students Must Follow Strict Rules

James H. Jones, Superintendent of Schools, announced today that the following information is pertinent to all parents in Hope School District 1-A who will have children entering the first grade in September, 1962, for the school year.

Act 41, which was approved last Feb. 2, 1961, by the Arkansas Legislature is as follows:

SECTION 1: No child shall be admitted to any public school in the state during any school year unless such child shall attain the age of six (6) years on or before October 1 of such school year.

SECTION 2: The provisions of this Act shall be applicable to the 1962-63 school year and every school year thereafter.

SECTION 3: All laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

In addition to the child being six years old on or before Oct. 1, he must also present a birth certificate and a health folder when enrolling in school next September. The folder may be secured from the Hempstead Co. Health Office.

All parents who have children entering school for the first time should pick up health folder at the County Health Unit. All inoculations should be recorded on this folder, including small pox vaccination, which is required by law.

ALC Critical of G&F Sunday Hunt

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Legislative Council today referred to its Agriculture and Conservation Committee a resolution criticizing the Game and Fish Commission for including a Sunday in a special three-day deer hunting season last month.

Cleveland County Rep. Raymond Mays introduced the resolution, but several council members objected that the language was too harsh.

Mays agreed to amending the resolution to remove criticism of the commission and make it a simple recommendation that no deer hunting be permitted on Sundays hereafter.

The resolution was referred to the Agriculture and Conservation Committee, which is expected to report back to the full council next week.

The resolution also calls for a study of the impact of Sunday hunting on the deer population and the effect on the economy.

Farmers Can Arrange Field Measurement

Hempstead County farmers can arrange for official measurements of their 1962 cotton, rice, peanut and tobacco acreage allotments, and corn, grain sorghum, Feed Grain Program diverted acreage and Wheat Stabilization Program diverted acreage, prior to planting time, the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee announced this week.

To get the premeasurement service, which is being provided on a cost basis, the farmer must file a request with the County ASCS office between January 1 and April 15, 1962 according to Claud Self, Chairman of the committee.

The rate to be charged for the service in Hempstead County has been established at $5.00 per farm, plus 25 cents per acre up to 50 acres, plus 10 cents in excess of 50 acres plus $1.00 for each plot in excess of one, and payment based on this rate must be made at the time the request for the measurement is filed.

"The premeasurement is purely optional," says Mr. Self, "and is offered as a service to growers who prefer to have an official measurement to use as a planting guide."

The Chairman explains that all allotment crop acreage in the county will be measured as soon as possible after planting time to determine compliance with the Acreage Allotment — Marketing Quota Program. When compliance is checked, the farm will be considered to be within the farm acreage allotment if the crop is planted within the premeasured area.

The hearings were in recess today to let members join the rest of the Armed Services Committee in a closed-door meeting at which top Army officials will unveil details of the new defense budget. Included are plans to streamline commands and create two additional combat divisions.

The first three days of the subcommittee's inquiry have brought testimony from Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; retired Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, former chief of naval operations; retired Gen. Thomas D. White, former Air Force chief of staff; Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, head of Army research and development and a former intelligence chief. Statements were submitted by others, including one by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Through much of the testimony have run charges that there seemed to be no clear policy or pattern to guide either speech writers or censors, and that a result has been some "frustrating" censoring of anti-Communist speech texts.

Castro's Cuba Is Unfit to Be Member

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

PUNTA EL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—The 20 American nations sitting in judgment on Cuba's communism agreed in principle today that Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime is unfit to be a member of the inter-American system. But they deadlocked once again on how and when to expel the Havana government from the Americas' family councils.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk met 2 1/2 hours in a midnight closed-door session with representatives of the two blocs, advocating opposing hard and soft lines toward Cuba. Rusk emerged from the meeting obviously weary but expressing hope of wooing support for the U.S. drive to isolate the Cuban regime.

The conference is scheduled to end Monday with the signing of a declaration meeting out punishment to Castro's regime. But adoption requires a two-thirds majority—14 votes—and the advocates of the tough line could only count on 13.

Brazil and Mexico led the seven-nation bloc advocating a go-slow approach toward the Havana government. They contend that the Organization of American States Charter contains no legal grounds for swift removal of the Castro regime from the OAS. They want an OAS committee appointed to determine what method can be used to oust the Cubans.

This obviously means a long delay. The United States wants action now and Rusk must persuade at least one of the other seven nations to join the tougher line. If he fails, he certainly will meet rising annoyance in the U.S. Congress on the Alliance for Progress program.

U.S. sources expressed confidence they would win over a few of the seven-nation bloc. In his call for a quarantine on Cuba, Rusk urged the American allies to declare Castro communism incompatible to the inter-American system, read the Havana regime out of the OAS deliberative bodies, sever trade with Cuba and establish individual and collective defense actions against political and indirect aggression.

The U.S. task was made somewhat easier when Uruguay suddenly switched its support back to the nations advocating a tough approach after the meeting with Rusk.

Camellia-Japonica Is Native of the Orient That Reached U.S. in a Round-About Way

By MARY ANITA LASETER

In this year of 1962 we shall attempt to tour a hypothetical garden with a snuff and a peck at different flowers each month. Admittedly, our first stop seems a bit odd since the unseasonal cold our area has experienced during January this year.

But, ordinarily, camellias are one flower we would be sure to see, so let's just pretend things like the weather are normal. The Camellia japonica is a native of India, China and Japan, but it reached America in a round-about way.

It was imported to Europe as early as 1739 from the spice ships of the East India Company. Certainly not a "sudden rage" in its new home, it took the camellia 60 years before it was "accepted" or attracted much attention. By 1800 the European botanists, plant breeders, garden makers, as well as writers, were very enthusiastic about the beautiful Oriental plant with the delicate blossoms.

Camellias were first brought to this country in 1797 by John Stevens of Hoboken, N.J. He was delighted with the red one he had, and three years later he brought another variety from Europe.

With different varieties being grown in different parts of our land, it would be safe to say the flowering season is from October through April. This is not true everywhere, for camellias have about finished blooming here in March. Of course, there are some unusual varieties that bloom as late as May or even August. And they are not just confined to the "sunny South," for a new kind has been developed for more northerly climates. (That is the kind Southwest Arkansians should have had a couple of weeks ago.)

"The Rose of China," as it is often referred to, comes in many sizes and colors as the results of much breeding, cross-breeding, and other pollinations. The results are blossoms ranging from deep red, to rose-colored, pink, white and even variegated varieties. Among the cultivated forms, one is occasionally found that is faintly scented, but generally they have no odor. (This scribe has never smelled a camellia. Have you?)

The pretty little camellia has an international background to its name. Originating in the Orient and being brought to America from England, it was a Swede, long an advocate of civil rights legislation, said Mansfield's action opened the door wide for other moves in this field.

Russell said in a statement that the Constitution specifically provides, in two places, that the states shall have the right to determine the qualifications of voters.

"The Congress cannot strike down these two provisions of the Constitution by statute," said Russell, leader of Southern Democratic senators opposed to civil rights measures.

"I regret very much," he said, "that the administration has permitted Sen. Javits and one or two of his associates to push them into this strained and politically inspired position."

Javits, who last year proposed a literacy test bill similar to that which Mansfield introduced, indicated in talking with newsmen that he thought he had forced the administration's hand.

Writer Irked JFK, U.S. Calls a Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Justice Department says that at the request of the White House it is looking into the legal aspects of President Kennedy's brush with a woman reporter at his news conference.

At Wednesday's session with newsmen, Kennedy rebuked the reporter, Sarah McClendon, for the nature of her question about two State Department employees.

Mrs. McClendon, correspondent for a number of newspapers in Texas and New England, described the two men as "well-known security risks." At Kennedy's request she named them: William Arthur Wieland and J. Clayton Miller.

Kennedy replied with some irritation that both men can carry out their assigned duties "without detriment to the interests of the United States." And, speaking directly to Mrs. McClendon, he said he hoped "without detriment to their character by your question."

The President also told her she had used "a very strong term which I would think that you should be prepared to substantiate."

After the news conference, a State Department spokesman said Wieland and Miller were reserving their legal rights. Presumably, this meant they might take legal action if they thought they had been damaged in any way by the questions or by news accounts of the episode.

U. S. Appears Ready for Moon Shot

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPTE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—With the target moving rapidly out of position, the United States today readied its most powerful rocket for an attempt to launch a spacecraft to the moon. Its mission: To take television pictures and land an instrument package to record moonquakes.

Scientists have less than a one-hour period late this afternoon in which to fire the 102-foot-tall Atlas-Agena B vehicle to put the spacecraft — Ranger 3 — on the proper course.

If troubles prevent the rocket from getting off the ground in this time, only Saturday will remain to launch by Saturday will mean a postponement until the next favorable period starting about Feb. 20.

The shot originally was set for last Monday, but fueling trouble caused a four-day delay.

Ranger 3 is the most complex unmanned space experiment ever attempted by the United States. It involves launching the Agena B second stage of the booster into orbit and, at the precise moment, re-starting the engine to boost the spacecraft's speed to 24,500 miles an hour and start it on its 66-hour voyage to the moon.

If successful, Ranger 3 will relay television pictures of the moon from as close as 15 miles away and will produce the first recordings of seismic activity and other information about the composition of the lunar surface.

The data, plus that to be gathered by more sophisticated machines in the next few years, will help stake out the landing site for the first U.S. manned lunar landing, hopefully by 1967.

The intricate mission involves dozens of events which must occur on a split-second timetable. Included is the firing of another engine 16 hours after launching to jockey the spacecraft into a collision course with the moon.

On the odds for success, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the assignment is so complex that it has "assigned three identical spacecraft to the task in the hope that at least one will be successful." Rangers 4 and 5 are to be launched later this year.

Rangers 1 and 2 were launched last fall to test techniques for the moon-landing attempts. Neither was aimed at the moon and each was only partially successful. However, the space agency felt they provided sufficient data to proceed with Ranger 3.

The United States has shot for the moon six times previously and failed each time. These launchings were designed to either fly close to the moon or orbit it.

The Soviet Union successfully got off two lunar launchings in 1959. Lunik II crashed on the moon but took no pictures and relayed no data after impact. Lunik III whirled into a gigantic orbit around earth and moon and took the first pictures of the moon's dark side.

Burns Fatal to Little Girl

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Kimberly Anne Kastner, 5, died at Brooke Army Medical Center early today of burns suffered when her nightgown caught fire at her home in Taipei, Formosa.

The child had been given no more than a 50-50 chance to live after she suffered second and third degree burns over 62 per cent of her body.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis W. Kastner. Kastner is an employee of the U.S. Navy at an air station in Formosa.

The little girl was flown here nonstop from Japan in a KC135 strategic air command jet tanker after doctors in Tokyo said she only chance of survival would come with treatment at the surgical research unit at Brooke Army Medical Center.

Second Lt. Ronald E. Swann of Fayetteville was navigator of the plane.

New Battle Shaping on Civil Rights

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—An election-year battle over civil rights legislation began shaping up today in the Senate.

The first move came unexpectedly Thursday when Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana introduced what he called an administration bill to prevent literacy tests from being used to deny voting rights.

Mansfield also pledged that if the measure should get bogged down in committee, he would move to attach it as a rider to some other legislation up for Senate action.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., a leading advocate of civil rights legislation, promptly said that Mansfield's move would throw the door wide open for action in this field.

He told newsmen he would be ready to offer riders providing federal aid to schools that desegregate arming the attorney general with authority to bring injunction suits for the protection of civil rights generally, and eliminating poll tax payments as a voting requirement.

Five states — Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas and Virginia — require payment of poll taxes.

Mansfield's bill would make the completion of six grades in an accredited school the test of whether a person is qualified to vote, insofar as literacy is concerned, in congressional and presidential elections.

Last September, in a report on voting, the Civil Rights Commission said six years of schooling should meet any state literacy requirement.

The measure was the first offered by the administration in the civil rights field since President Kennedy took office a year ago. Southern Democrats have given notice they will battle the proposal as an invasion of states' rights, whether offered in the form of legislation or as a constitutional amendment.

Mansfield said he assumed his bill would be referred for consideration to the Senate Judiciary Committee, headed by Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss.

Cites Need for Trained Workers

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The superintendent of a Florida children's institution says the greatest need of children's homes is professionally-trained personnel.

Dr. T. M. Johns, superintendent of the Florida Baptist Children's Home at Lakeland, addressed the Child Care Executive Association of the Southern Baptist Convention Thursday.

He said he hopes that Southern Baptist colleges or universities will soon offer accredited training in the field of social work.

Edgar E. Blake, superintendent of the Missouri Baptist Children's Home at Bridgeton, was elected president of the association and the Rev. Harold C. Seefeldt, superintendent of the Arkansas Baptist Children's Home at Monticello, was elected first vice president.

Steel Files for Renomination

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—District officials from Nashville, Newport and Blytheville filed Thursday for renomination in this summer's Democratic primary election.

Prosecuting Atty. John Horman Harkey of Newport filed for a second term in the 3rd Judicial District.

Circuit Judge Bobby Steel of Nashville will seek a third term as judge in the 9th Circuit.

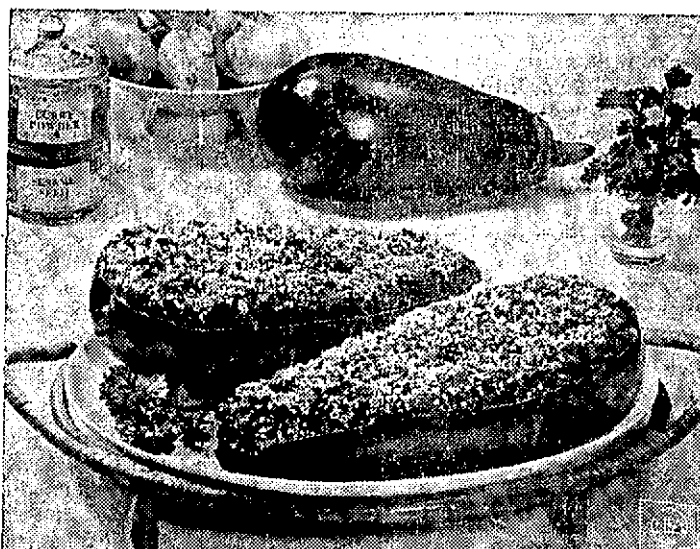

Chancellor Gene Bradley of Blytheville filed for re-election to his first full six-year term on the 12th Chancery bench.

Helps Colleges

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Acme Brick Co. of Fort Worth, Tex., which has plants at Fort Smith, Malvern and Perla, Ark., has donated $1,000 to the Arkansas Foundation of Associated Colleges, the foundation announced Thursday.

Casual Early American furniture is made of steel. Weather resistant, it can be moved to the terrace or patio in summer. Finished here in antique yellow, chairs and deacon's bench in the background have bright seat pads in a calico print. Round dining table top is Philippine mahogany.

CURRIED stuffed eggplant provides enough good eating to be the main dish. Toasted sesame seeds are the garnish.

EVEN a slightly overweight coed needs lots of citrus fruit every day—as well as time to telephone.

DOROTHY DIX Should Children Referee Bouts of Battling Parents?

By HELEN WOREN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: Our parents have come to a parting of the ways. After 24 years of marriage they pour out their troubles to their children, now all grown.

This is a terrific strain on our emotions. We love them both. My brother and sister-in-law openly side with Mama. They tell her, "You should have left Papa long ago."

She has had a time of it. Before she can go to the store, even with me, she must call him at work and ask for permission. He makes my sister stay with her every minute he is away, convinced that otherwise she would two-time him. He flies into a rage every week or so—the spells are getting more frequent—accusing her of the worst things.

When he cross-questions Mama, her stock reply is, "None of your business!" This infuriates him. The last time, he drew a gun shouting, "I am going to kill you!" but didn't.

Once these spells pass, he is lambie-pie. Maybe Mama did step out as a girl but she certainly never has since I have known her. I realize we are all supposed to forget the past and look only to the future but that is easier said than done and Papa evidently can't do it.

He is not a mean person. He suffers more than Mama and will cry like a baby after one of their bouts. This is why I feel so sorry for him.

They have a nice home, new car, loving children—everything but peace of mind. It worries us kids a lot but I can't see getting mixed up in somebody else's business, especially that of a husband and wife. To my way of thinking, my brother and sister-in-law should not take sides. What is your opinion?—Unhappy Daughter

Dear Unhappy Daughter: It is a losing game to take sides in any quarrel between husband and wife. The luckless person who tries will in the end be wounded by one or the other, or draw fire from both. It never fails. Warn your brother and sister-in-law to steer clear if they value their lives, and this is not advice lightly given, for while your father failed to use that gun, he does have it.

Never Helen: Men are always saying they don't understand women. After 22 years of marriage I still can't make out men.

Take my husband, one of the best construction engineers going. He can tear down a rig and put it back together himself in half the time it takes two men to do the same job, and he would do it better. He can tell what is wrong with a derick just by hearing it run, and what it will cost to the penny to repair. He has a reputation among all the big companies for being a A-1 man.

Nevertheless he is always the first to be let out because he is a braggart, name-dropper, and know-it-all. His sharp tongue and sarcastic tone of voice, provokes arguments and even fights. It is the same at home. Our four children don't know how normal lives can be. One by one our friends have left us until now we might as well live on a desert island. Some come right out, call him a show-off.

I have tried reasoning, threats and cajoling. It is no use. He doesn't want a divorce and nat-

State Plants Make Variety of Products

By J. C. TILLMAN Associated Press Staff Writer

There are in Arkansas some 3,200 manufacturing firms employing over 99,000 workers.

Over half of these companies deal in lumber and wood products; the remainder in products from boats to brickbats.

Just what all is made in Arkansas?

A brief study of the Directory of Arkansas Industries published by the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission, reveals an astonishing range of items.

Arkansas is thought of primarily as an agricultural state with a big timber industry, some manufacturing and some mining.

The four all play a part in the total Arkansas output of finished products.

Everybody knows that hardwood flooring is manufactured in the lumber industry.

But what about fish lures, baseball bats, ping pong tables and picket fences. These are all made in Arkansas. Also tool handles, barrel staves and strawberry crates.

In Cabot, they make fish net hoops and in Harrison, ruler blanks. They produce rough-turned golf club heads in Wheatley for finishing elsewhere.

Arkansas has lots of furniture factories turning out everything from unpainted items to period pieces. One makes recessed telephone cabinets.

Three Arkansas communities — Mena, Fordyce and Jonesboro — lead in the manufacture of church pews.

There are 66 firms in the state turning out hardwood products and flooring. These are fed by 115 sawmills and planing mills, each employing 20 or more persons.

Arkansas also has a sizable printing and paper manufacturing industry that produces everything from business forms to magazines, light bulb wrappers to folding cartons.

The state turns out plastic, ther do I, but we can't go on like this.

Is there a cure? —Hopeless. Dear Hopeless: Boosters and name-droppers are terribly insecure, frightened people, unsure of themselves and everybody else. A psychiatrist might help your husband but, being a know-it-all, he will probably refuse to see one.

For a start, try praising his good points and ignoring the bad ones. Should he fail to respond, give him his choice either of seeing a psychiatrist or seeing you and the children leave. But make sure that you do leave if he balks. It may take a job like this to bring him to his senses.

Dear Helen: My 20-year-old son is being pursued by a twice-married divorcee of 24. We are all about crazy trying to break this up but no amount of talk does any good. He runs at her beck and call like a puppy on the end of a string; sits up when she says, "Sit up," and eats when she says, "Eat!" I know they will never make a go of marriage.

She is not the type to stick by one man. What to do? Please help! —Grace

Dear Grace: Having warned your son, all you can do is let experience be his teacher. He couldn't have a better one, and there is always a possibility that this girl, wild though she may appear to you, is the right girl for him.

Tariff Cut Will Prove Troublesome

By JAMES MARLOW Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Of all his 1962 programs, President Kennedy will probably fight hardest—and have to—for the one he sent to Congress Thursday, asking power to cut tariffs in big swipes.

He knows what he's in for and acknowledged at his news conference Wednesday he may get hit from several directions.

For example: By sectional to local interests who are afraid that their particular product will be hurt by some European import which, through lowered American tariffs, can come in to compete with them.

Kennedy said he needs the tariff-cutting power to bring the United States into a trading partnership with Europe's new Common Market countries.

If that market reaches its ideal state, the European members will wipe out tariffs on one another so completely that their products will move across one another's frontiers as freely as trade in America moves across all 50 state lines.

But, while wiping out tariffs on one another for their mutual benefit, they will keep them up or raise them on imports from nonmembers. That will apply to the United States unless this country makes deals with them to lower tariffs on our stuff if we lower tariffs on theirs.

Kennedy is not proposing this country join the Common Market. That could come later. Right now he's concerned with getting Congress to let him make tariff-cutting deals.

At this time total American exports are roughly around $20 billion, imports about $15 billion. If this country should get shut out, that favorable export balance would get a big dent in it.

Then in order to compete with European-made products on their own ground—Kennedy pointed out in Thursday's message—more American plants will be tempted to open factories in Europe.

That would mean loss of jobs, income and industry in this country. But lower tariffs which made it easier for competitive European products to come in would without question hurt some American industries.

For this reason some of the toughest opposition, and perhaps the biggest damage, to Kennedy's tariff-cutting request will come from various sections and local communities which may feel they are fighting for their life.

For example: The AFL-CIO, as a national organization, can back up Kennedy by turning loose its lobbyists to buttonhole members of the House and Senate to per-leather, metal, glass and many other little publicized items.

A partial list in the Industrial Directory shows that in Harrison they make zinc housings for parking meters. Little Rock produces portable aluminum kitchens and Fort Smith has a firm making parachute shoulder harnesses.

In Conway they make refrigerator cabinets, in Texarkana railroad tank cars and in Bonnevill, bowling balls.

Other items made in the state include air rifles, model airplane motors, ice vending houses, floating concrete boat docks, disappearing attic stairways, combs, croquet balls, stained glass windows, wooden shoe lasts, corduroy, hosiery, cotton cloth for shoe linings, cheese, pre-cooked dinners and wine.

Blytheville firms produce caskets, funeral cars and ambulance bodies.

The Arkansas range of products extends from vibratory reducing machines to cedar lamps. At Pine Bluff, they even turn out colored smoke for ordnance use.

An interesting facet of Arkansas industry is a product made in Rogers — washed chicken feathers.

Some are used for stuffing for pillows, but more are ground up and put into poultry feed. A protein content of 85 per cent is claimed.

$2.1 Million But Deeply in Debt

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Even though his estate is valued at $2.1 million, Ernie Kovacs' widow says the comedian was deeply in debt.

The actor's widow, singer Edie Adams, offered this explanation Thursday: "The gross value doesn't represent a true picture of the estate at all. Ernie had been working with the government for a long time trying to untangle his affairs. There is a tax lien on the house and its contents. We won't know where we stand until the government gets through going over the books."

Airport Money

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Aviation Agency has advised Arkansas congressmen of an allocation of $273,000 for airport and air navigation systems in Arkansas. Of the amount, $250,000 goes to Little Rock and $23,000 to Fort Smith.

No Change in Plans of Rockefeller

NEW YORK (AP)—A Rockefeller family spokesman said today there has been "no change whatsoever" in the plans of Governor and Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller to obtain a divorce. The one-sentence statement was issued in reply to a story in Newsday, Long Island afternoon daily newspaper, saying it had learned that Mrs. Rockefeller no longer intends to seek an out-of-state divorce. The story said that her position was that if the governor wants a divorce, he would have to get it himself by establishing out-of-state residence. This would mean forfeiture of his state office. In response to the report, a family spokesman issued this statement: "It has been ascertained that there has been no change whatsoever in the original plans and intentions of Governor and Mrs. Rockefeller, as they were made known on Nov. 17, 1961." At that time, the formal announcement said the Rockefellers had agreed to a legal separation and property settlement, and that the terms were expected to be "incorporated into a subsequent degree of divorce." A family spokesman, at that time, said the divorce would be sought outside New York State, and that it could be assumed that Mrs. Rockefeller would make the application. Asked today if this part of the plan also remained unchanged, the spokesman said "Yes, that's right."

New Chief in Congo Operation
LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Robert K. Gardiner of Ghana was temporarily appointed chief officer of the U.N. Congo operation today to succeed Dr. Sture Linner of Sweden. Linner asked to be relieved for a personal reason. Informal sources said this was illness of his wife.

We wish to express our thanks for the many flowers and cards sent and the kindness and sympathy shown during the death of our husband and father, Otis Foster. Especially do we thank Dr. Charles Avery of Prescott and Herndon-Cornelius Funeral Home.

final preflight briefing, and reviewed the flight plan many times in his comfortable quarters in Hangar S.

With him at all times was the backup pilot, Navy Lt. Cmdr. Scott Carpenter. Carpenter has participated in the same rigid preparation as Glenn in case he had to substitute for some reason. Lt. Col. John A. Powers, spokesman for the seven astronauts, explained to newsmen how Glenn felt about the risk involved. Powers said that Glenn, a veteran test pilot, wanted it stressed that although "we have reduced the risk as far as is humanly possible, there is still a risk."

Powers recalled that throughout history pioneers have faced risks, but that this did not stop exploration.

Glenn's flight had been scheduled four times previously. The original date was Dec. 20, when Mercury officials felt they had a chance to achieve manned orbital flight in 1961, the same year the Russians succeeded.

But with pressure mounting and time running out, a decision was made to delay the flight until Jan. 16 to provide greater assurance of success. This date skidded a week because of a fueling problem with the Atlas.

Then trouble with the oxygen supply system in the capsule caused further delay. The flight is intended to provide guidelines for America's future course in space. Scientists primarily seek an answer on how man is able to function in prolonged periods of weightlessness. Man traveling to other planets would have this sensation of free falling almost the entire flight, which could last weeks.

On his 17-orbit flight last Aug. 6, Soviet spaceman Gherman Titov reported that most of the time he suffered a vertigo sickness, or dizziness. He said this was especially pronounced when he turned his head sharply or observed swiftly moving objects outside his spaceship.

The first man to orbit the earth, Soviet cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin, reported no such discomfort on his one trip around the world April 12, 1961. Nor did American astronaut Alan B. Shepard and Virgil I. Grissom on their brief suborbital rocket rides last year.

Withholding on Dividends Considered
By EDMOND LEBRETON
WASHINGTON (AP)—You may be doing a little extra arithmetic when you make out your income tax return for 1963—and the Treasury may be $600 million richer without having hit the honest taxpayer any harder. This is the prospect held out by the Treasury and the House Ways and Means Committee, which on Thursday ordered drafted a new tax code provision for withholding of income tax on dividends and interest.

The principle is the same as withholding on wages, now an old story. The procedure would be a bit different. If the plan eventually is approved by Congress, it would work like this: Say you have a savings account that pays you $50 interest a year. The bank of savings and loan association would pay you only $40 (80 per cent of $50) and it would send to the Treasury $10 (20 per cent of $50). It wouldn't have to give you a statement, although it might. But you could assume that, whenever you received interest or dividends, an amount equivalent to one-fourth of what you actually got had been placed to your tax credit with the Treasury.

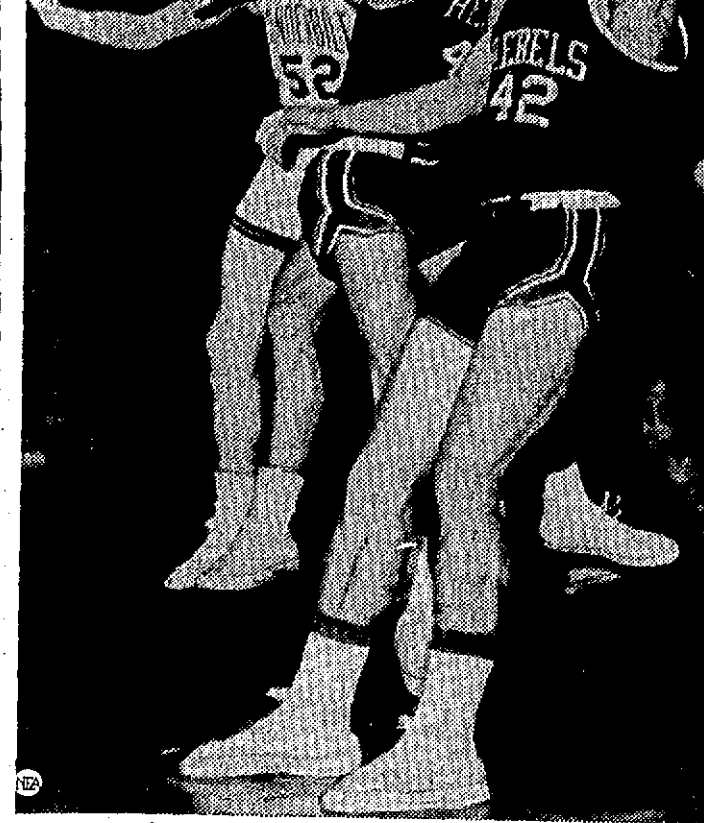

So, making out your income tax return two years from now, average commission of $2 a pint and that it grossed about $6,000 a month, or $72,000 a year, instead of $500,000.

Denies Guilt in Stale Blood Case
NEW YORK (AP)—The operator of a blood service said today he is innocent of a charge by a federal grand jury that he sent stale blood to 92 hospitals. "We feel we are being railroaded in this thing," John Calise, 51, said at his home in suburban New Rochelle, N.Y. "It's unjustifiable."

Calise said his firm, Westchester Blood Service, Inc., which went out of business last September while under investigation, was solely a distributor. The indictment, returned Thursday, said Calise grossed $500,000. He said labels were printed by supplies and "could not be changed."

The Road to the Snail

By WILLIAM P. MCGIVERN
Chapter XXX
We ran down the hill together, Terry and I, Francesca and Dennis, holding hands to keep our balance on the rocky ground. It was a small miracle the women didn't break an ankle in their high heels.

Walkowicz and his crew were swarming about in the middle of the new roadbed. We heard the echoes of their shouts bouncing back from the mountainside. People were running up the trail from the village, gesturing frantically and erratically, like mechanical toys which had been wound too tightly.

When we reached Walkowicz and his men we saw the great jagged hole in the road. Ropes and cables and a chain-ladder had been dropped into it like fishing lines. "Keep back!" Walkowicz shouted at us. "Something else might give." To his men he yelled: "Get some arcs working, set off them flares."

Instantly there was an explosion of blinding light which sent the shadows of evening leaping and skittering back up the mountain-side. "What happened?" I asked Walkowicz. "Road started to splinter and crack. Tex jumped off the 'dozer just in time. The ground broke like an egg-shell and down went the 'dozer. Into a cave or something."

"No one's hurt?" "I don't know. Tex went down the chain-ladder with a fire-extinguisher. We ain't heard a peep out of him for five minutes. Back up now, keep behind the lights."

One of the construction men at the edge of the hole suddenly yelled: "Here he comes now! Here's Tex."

A head appeared above the rim of the opening. The torches threw it into instant, shocking relief; it was a large head, an imposing head, with a fine proud nose and blank staring eyes. And there was a laurel-wreath circling its bald crown.

At my side Dennis drew a sharp breath. "I say! Isn't that Julius Caesar?" The head floated ponderously upward, and we all understood the eerie illusion we had been victimized by; the Texan was holding the head in one hand, while hauling himself up the chain-ladder with his other.

Grinning hugely, he rolled the stone head over the ground toward Walkowicz. "Little souvenir, chief. And you know what? This road is setting on top of a little old Roman town."

Later, archeologists were to amplify this statement; geologists expounded it; historians interpret it; and a thousand doctoral theses would eventually imprison their data forever in the dusty stacks of libraries scattered all around the world. But no scholar or scientist ever

Bobcats Take Fairview By 50-47 Score

By VINCE FOSTER

The Bobcats took a very important conference victory last night as they came from behind to beat the highly rated Fairview Cardinals 50-47. However, in the junior game, the district leading Fairview Juniors took the Bobcats for their second loss of the season by the score of 32-29, and at the County Tournament in Spring Hill the Junior Girls lost to Saratoga 35-23.

The Bobcats started out ahead 9-6 in the first quarter, despite the offense-defense punch of Cardinals Keith Dunlap and Jimmy Bush. However, they trailed Fairview 17-13 in the second quarter and 33-29 in the third. There was much action in the final quarter, with Dan Jones and Jeffery Powell sinking important free throws and Murphy and Hatfield providing the field goals. With a late press, the Cats were able to pull it out 50-47.

Earl Ray Murphy was high for Hope with 14, followed by Hatfield with 12, and Powell with 11. Porterfield 8, Jones 4, and Russell 1, to complete the scoring. Dunlap led the losers with 18.

The Kittens jumped to a 10-5 first quarter lead, but on a late score were tied 19-19 at the half. They fell behind 28-27 in the third and lost 32-29. Burnett led Hope with 13 and Ronnie Ingram took 6. Jordan and McNatt had 5 each to complete the scoring. Bush was high for Fairview with 22.

The Junior Girls were never really in the ball game as they trailed 15-5, 23-13, 30-17 and 35-23 after each quarter. Shirley Smith and Annett Hatfield provided the scoring for Hope with Smith taking 14 and Hatfield sinking 9.

Tonight the Cats and Kittens travel to Crossett for another important conference battle and for those who can't make that trip, the Lady Cats play Guernsey in finals of the County Tournament tonight at Spring Hill.

Tennessee School Desegregates

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP)—Police kept a discreet watch today at a junior high school which admitted three Negro eighth graders in the first school desegregation in west Tennessee outside of Memphis. The three were enrolled at Tigrett Junior High Thursday in a surprise move. No public announcement was made until after the students were inside the building. There were no incidents.

The secrecy extended even to the teachers, who were informed of the plans shortly before the school opened. Tigrett has 661 students. You would enter the full $50 with your income, but take credit for $10 tax already paid.

The Treasury strongly favors the plan, saying huge amounts in dividend and interest now are not reported. The committee put it into the draft of an interim tax reform bill; still to be voted on as a whole.

It included also provisions for quick refunds of withheld income and dividends to persons sure they owe no tax and for withholding exemptions on interest, but not dividends, for children and the aged.

The committee also put into its catch-all bill: Language intended to make it clear, despite court decisions, that travel to Washington or a state capital or other place where a legislative committee is conducting hearings can be deducted as a business expense by a businessman supporting or opposing legislation that affects his income.

Provisions for straightening out the taxation of patronage dividends distributed by cooperatives. The general principle is that the cooperative may deduct such dividends, but the patron must pay on them.

So, making out your income tax return two years from now, average commission of $2 a pint and that it grossed about $6,000 a month, or $72,000 a year, instead of $500,000.
